President Quits Capital's
Humidity to Work on 100 Measures Passed by Congress

Cites Attacks
Backs by Conservative Party Members Lead FDR to Opinions

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP)—President Roosevelt arrived at 4 a. m. (E. S. T.) today and returned to his country home to find several days working on a backlog of some 200 bills passed in the closing days of Congress.

Aside from a press conference, White House officials said Mr. Roosevelt had made no engagements for the day.

The President was expected to remain at his Dutchess county home at least until Saturday. Afterward he planned to go to New York and board the cruiser Tuscaloosa for a cruise of the New England and Canadian coasts.

Mrs. Roosevelt met her husband at the station and rode with him to their family home.

Claiming fulfillment of all the objectives of his 1937 court reorganization program, the Chief Executive last evening unexpectedly issued a statement saying:

"Attacks recently made on the Supreme Court itself by ultra-conservative members of the bar indicate how fully our liberal ideas have already prevailed."

Recalls Controversy

The President's comment, recalling the bitter controversy over his defeated proposal to enlarge the Supreme Court, is just over 70 days after he was occasioned by his signing of a bill which created an administrative officer to oversee affairs of all federal courts.

That measure was one of seven parts of his original proposal, which split Democratic ranks in Congress and created nationwide argument. Six of the parts have been enacted into law, Mr. Roosevelt said, and added that the seventh "has been accomplished through the Supreme Court itself."

"The country is naturally concerned with the attainment of proper objectives rather than any one of many possible methods proposed for the accomplishment of the end," the President's statement continued.

"I called attention (two and a half years ago) to the unwarranted attitude of the Supreme Court with reference to the exercise of its constitutional powers. Measures of social and economic reform were being impeded or defeated by narrow interpretations of the Constitution, and by the assumption on the part of the Supreme Court of legislative powers which properly belonged to the Congress."

"It is true that the precise method, which I recommended, was not adopted, but the objective, as every person in the United States knows today, was achieved. The results are not even open to dispute."

Since the Senate killed his Supreme Court bill just two years ago, Mr. Roosevelt has appointed four justices to the tribunal, and Congress gradually has authorized administrative changes in the federal court system to speed up its work. The President's statement listed these changes as follows:

Appointment of 25 additional federal judges, with a newly-approved bill authorizing five more.

"The congested dockets and the delay," the President said, "have been already almost eliminated."

Provision for reassigning judges more readily to areas where the courts were behind in their work.

Giving the attorney general the right to intervene in private cases involving constitutionality of federal laws, and placing limitations on issuing lower court injunctions in such cases.

Authorizing direct and immediate appeal to the Supreme Court of cases involving constitutionality of federal laws, with these cases getting precedence over all others.

Extending to Supreme Court justices retirement privileges on full pay after they have reached the age of 70 and have served 10 years.

Appointment of an administrative officer so that the federal judiciary can exercise its own dockets and expedite its own affairs.

As he issued the statement, Mr. Roosevelt concluded a busy day signing bills which Congress enacted during its closing week. He took about 200 more bills with him to consider at Hyde Park.

Next week-end he will begin a leisurely trip along the eastern coast of Canada in the navy cruiser Tuscaloosa. A brief visit to Campobello Island, N. B., will be his only stop ashore during the 10-day journey.

Bucharest, Aug. 8 (AP)—A large Rumanian military mission will leave shortly for conferences with Turkish military leaders at Ankara, it was announced today.

Federal Officials To Give Serious Study to Requests

Drouth Conditions Chief Reason Why Amendment to Milk Order Will Be Given Attention

Washington, Aug. 8 (AP)—Agriculture department officials said today that because of serious drouth conditions in some parts of New York state they would give "serious consideration" to requests for amending the federal milk marketing order there to provide a higher price to dairymen.

Frank Lent, counsel for the New York metropolitan milk producers bargaining agency, said today that he had prepared a price boost petition but officials said it had not been received.

Official reports to the department indicated drouth conditions were most severe in southeastern and central New York, where it was said "available roughage supplies cannot possibly carry cattle through the winter."

A department spokesman said that should Secretary Wallace decide to open the New York order to amendments a period of six weeks might be required to complete hearings and hold a referendum among the 60,000 farmers in the milkshed.

He suggested that other remedies might be necessary to aid stricken dairymen, such as outlined by Acting Secretary of Agriculture Brown in a letter to President Roosevelt.

Business Better Than Last Year

Recovery Continuation Began in May With Activity
Ahead Says Hopkins

Washington, Aug. 8 (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Hopkins said today that business progress during July represented a continuation of a "recovery movement" started in May, with activity well ahead of a year ago in all major lines.

Prospects for third quarter business have improved, he said, and business policies generally reflect less hesitancy.

Retailer commitments in wholesale markets are enlarged, Hopkins' report showed, and industrial purchasing has expanded. Orders in many clothing lines showing substantial gains over the earlier part of the year were cited as indicative of the more confident attitude toward fall business.

Construction operations were at a seasonal peak, activity in the industry being even greater than in the summer of 1937.

Retail trade in July was well ahead of a year ago, with marked gains in consumers' durable goods such as automobiles, refrigerators, furniture and electrical appliances, and gasoline consumption was at record levels.

Consumers' budgets were said to have benefitted from lower food costs as compared with a year ago. Consumers' incomes in July were on a higher seasonally adjusted basis than in June, following a substantial rise in employees' compensation from May to June.

Paris, Aug. 8 (AP)—Three men held up two private bank messengers today near the Paris Bourse and escaped with 1,200,000 francs (about $31,000) in an automobile.

AFL Executive Council May Hold Open Meeting With Actors at Atlantic City

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 8 (AP)—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor, which always has met in private, may hold an open meeting Thursday when movie, stage and radio stars are scheduled to thresh out union problems.

William Green, AFL president, said he couldn't possibly remember what would be discussed and would not be able to report accurately to the council meeting. It has been a custom to have Green report council discussions.

The entertainers recently had their ranks split when the Associated Actors and Artists of America, parent of a dozen theatrical unions, ousted the American Federation of Actors. The AFA, headed by Sophie Tucker, is com-

End of an Elephant Hunt — in Virginia

Virginia's great elephant hunt in which police and farmers joined for a day and a half—comes to a peaceful end as Elsie (right), escaped circus elephant, is led by her trainer back to captivity. Two-ton Elsie fled after the wreck of a circus truck in which a man was killed, near Staunton, Va. An airplane, following a trail of damaged fences, located her a day later and two other elephants were turned loose to lure Elsie out of the woods. They're shown following her back home.

Sayre Is of Mind That Filipinos Now Wish Independence

New High Commissioner
Said to Have Conviction
That Autonomy Chief
Aim of Islanders

Washington, Aug. 8 (AP)—Francis B. Sayre took the oath of office as high commissioner in the Philippine Islands at noon today.

Independence Is Desire
By ANDREW MERDING

Washington, Aug. 8 (AP)—Francis B. Sayre, new high commissioner to the Philippines, is going to Manila shortly with an open mind on the future of Philippine independence.

As far as Sayre is concerned, independence was agreed to by Congress in 1934 and is a compact that cannot be chiseled into unless the Philippine commonwealth itself asks reconsideration.

The ruddy-faced, 54-year-old high commissioner, formerly a son-in-law of President Woodrow Wilson, is at present convinced that the majority of the Filipinos want their independence. He harks back to generations before the United States occupied the islands in 1898, when the Filipinos were striving for independence from the Spaniards.

Some officials believe that when he gets to the islands, he will find the fine fervor of independence somewhat toned down by the threat many Filipinos believe hangs over them from Japan. The Japanese advances in China and declarations on the existence of a new order in East Asia have spread alarm among a portion of the Filipinos fearful of what might happen to the islands once the United States pulled out.

Must Be Educated

But as yet this portion is a minority, it is thought here. The Filipino leaders who regard the Japanese situation gravely are not prepared as yet to do anything about it. Their people must be educated away from Philippine independence before they can act.

Sayre's predecessor, Paul V. McNutt, now head of the Federal Security Administration, came back from Manila convinced the United States should reconsider its decision and hold the Philippines on the grounds that otherwise they would fall prey to Japan. Some officials believe he has convinced President Roosevelt this is the proper policy to follow.

Sayre goes to the Philippines cheered by the success of the bill he fostered to stretch out Philippine economic ties with the United States.

Thousand Gallons Per Minute Manhattan Water Main Raises Broadway Havoc

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—Traffic on upper Broadway was snarled today and the streets in the neighborhood of 125th street were flooded when a 36-inch water main broke, sending up geysers of water at the rate of 1,000 gallons a minute.

Three emergency squads and scores of policemen re-routed traffic while a water supply department crew closed a water gate at 136th street, depriving the area of water for 15 minutes.

Five minutes later the crew narrowly escaped injury when a section of the pavement at 125th street, 20 feet square, dropped three feet. A few seconds later a smaller section settled eight inches.

Justice Lyon Rules On Value of Dog

Marlborough Court Says
Worth $50 or Jail Term

It is worth $50 or 50 days in the county jail to shoot a dog of a neighbor according to Justice of the Peace Philip A. Lyon of Marlborough. That was the sentence he pronounced last evening after a jury had found Charles Zachary Rogers of North Road, Marlborough, guilty of shooting a pet dog of Jackson D. Taylor, who operates a roadside stand and gas station a short distance from the Rogers place.

After the jury had deliberated for 15 minutes on the guilt of the defendant, a verdict of guilty was pronounced. Immediately after Mr. Rogers announced that he would appeal the decision and was given until 2 o'clock today to post a $100 bond pending appeal.

Crowded Court Room

The trial was one of the most interesting apparently to citizens of the village in some time. The court room was crowded and between 50 and 60 were unable to gain admittance to the crowded court room.

According to the residents of the locality other dogs have disappeared in that vicinity over the past few years.

Jackson Taylor, operator of a roadside stand, had a pet dog which acted as a watch dog about the premises which are located across from the Rosoff Sand and Gravel bank. On July 19 he claimed it disappeared. Inquiry about the locality brought forth information from a colored man on the Rogers place, one Johnston Heath, that the dog had been shot by Rogers. Trooper William Martin was called in and an investigation was started.

Dog Exhumed

According to the testimony of witnesses last night the investigation led to the Rogers place where the Taylor dog was dug from its grave by Heath, Taylor and Trooper Martin.

In true criminal investigation manner an autopsy was performed on the corpse of the dog by Dr. Michael Donahue, Newburgh veterinarian. The examination showed that a bullet had struck the animal and was found imbedded. On the stand Monday eve-

Godfrey Reports 18 Persons Exposed on Boat to Smallpox

Poughkeepsie, Albany and Ellenville Are Listed as Places Where Some Passengers Reside

Albany, Aug. 8 (Special)—There are at least 18 persons in upstate New York, including Ellenville, Poughkeepsie and Albany, who are believed to have possibly been exposed to malignant smallpox on the S. S. Saturday, an Italian boat upon which a man returning to New York city was taken ill and later developed the disease, according to an announcement today by Dr. Edward S. Godfrey, Jr., state commissioner of health.

Doctor Godfrey said that although the department is having some difficulty in finding the suspected contacts because of faulty addresses, those found are being placed under observation and vaccinated to prevent a possible spread of the disease.

Among the places in the state in addition to Ellenville, Poughkeepsie and Albany where suspected contacts are reported to be residing are Solvay, Wilson, Mineola, Oyster Bay, Hempstead Heath, Maryknoll, and Cliffside Park. Today the department sent the names of the suspected contacts as taken from the passenger list to district health officers.

Diagnosis Delayed

The ship sailed from Lisbon, Portugal, on July 20, and docked at New York on July 27. It is believed that the onset of the illness of the passenger was probably the day before the boat landed at New York, although it was not possible to make the diagnosis of smallpox until several days later.

"The patient is believed to have been in contact with a person in Lisbon who was ill at the time of this contact, the illness having been found later to be malignant smallpox, a type which has a high fatality rate," Doctor Godfrey said. "This type of smallpox is prevalent in Portugal, where the disease has a fatality rate of from 30 to 60 per cent."

Placed Under Quarantine

"All passengers on the boat who may have been exposed to the imported case are being located and placed under quarantine. This case demonstrates the possibility of the importation of the severe type of smallpox into this country with the present means of rapid transportation. The department has been informed that the patient had never been vaccinated and that vaccination before embarkation was waived because of the fact that he was an American citizen."

Johnson Takes Lead

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 8 (AP)—Lieut. Gov. Keen Johnson, endorsed by the AFL-Kentucky Federation of Labor and sharply critical of the CIO in his campaign, swept into a 24,304-vote lead today over his chief opponent, John Young Brown, for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. An unofficial tabulation based on returns from 2,895 of the state's 4,307 precincts in Saturday's primaries gave Johnson 193,640, Brown 189,336.

Last word from Kaifeng Saturday said the Americans were preparing to flee because of menacing anti-American demonstrations.

British officials continued their investigation into two Japanese air raids near Ichang Sunday which destroyed two Yangtze river steamers and other British property. Both Japanese army and navy authorities were reluctant to admit responsibility.

Local PBA Gives Mayor Full Credit For Stadium Bids

Resolution Is Adopted at Meeting Extending Full Appreciation to Mayor
for His Kindness

Refusing to accept credit where credit was not due the Kingston Patrolmen's Benevolent Association meeting in the city hall on Monday afternoon unanimously adopted a resolution introduced by Officer William T. Woodell, a past president of the association, and seconded by Officer Joseph Fallon, a past secretary of the association extending to Mayor C. J. Heiselman its "appreciation and thanks for such thoughtfulness and consideration in issuing invitations to the children of Kingston to attend the opening of the municipal stadium."

At the last meeting of the common council, Alderman Elbert Wolff, Democratic alderman of the Seventh ward, introduced a resolution thanking the police for inviting the children of the city to attend, and awarding all credit for the deed to the police association instead of to the mayor.

A copy of the resolution introduced by Alderman Wolff was forwarded to the association which led to the organization taking action at its meeting yesterday.

PBA Resolution

The resolution, which was unanimously adopted, reads as follows:

WHEREAS, the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association of the Kingston Police Department has received a copy of a resolution introduced by Alderman Wolff of the Seventh ward and passed by the Common Council of the City of Kingston on August 1, 1939, and

WHEREAS, in said resolution the Board of Aldermen thanked our association for the splendid game in which it staged the baseball games in conjunction with the opening of the new stadium and for the generous invitation to the children of Kingston on that occasion, and

WHEREAS, no mention was made of nor thanks extended to our Honorable Mayor Heiselman for the part he played in inviting the children to the games, and

WHEREAS, our association recognizes the Mayor's thoughtfulness and consideration of the children in extending such an invitation.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the Kingston Patrolmen's Benevolent Association extend to Mayor Heiselman its appreciation and thanks for such thoughtfulness and consideration in issuing invitations to the children of Kingston to attend the opening of the stadium, and be it further

RESOLVED, that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Honorable Mayor Heiselman.

Bitter Words
(By The Associated Press)

Polish and German newspapers exchanged bitter words today, centering attention on Danzig anew, while military forces across most of Europe engaged in war maneuvers or prepared for such drills.

The Berlin press attack on Poland was of a unanimity that hinted at official inspiration. It followed the lead of the official German News Agency, DNB, which warned that "challenges" from Poland would result in "acquaintance with German weapons."

Pretext for the attack was an editorial yesterday in the conservative Warsaw newspaper Czas which said "the guns of the Polish army are facing Danzig, should authorities of the Free Cities not abandon in time the dangerous road they are following on orders from outside."

Danzig at Salzburg

The Danzig Nazi leader, Albert Forster, was reported to have landed at Salzburg airport last night, possibly to see Adolf Hitler, whose mountain chalet is nearby.

A Warsaw newspaper said Polish customs officials of the Danzig-East Prussian frontier had been ordered to wear uniforms and carry rifles. Official confirmation was lacking.

Britain's anti-aircraft defenses were manned against make-believe "enemy" bombers which are to sweep in from the sea tonight for a test of the island's air defenses. Part of the 500 raiders will fly over France and return to "attack" while the remainder will fly in from the North Sea.

A blackout covering half of England Thursday will climax the air defense practice which precedes extensive air war games in Yorkshire and joint maneuvers of the home and reserve fleets.

In the Far East, where western nations also have their troubles, a courier was sent from Chengchow to cross the Japanese lines to Kaifeng in an effort to find out how Americans there are surviving increased anti-American pressure.

Thornton Declines ALP Nomination

Eugene F. Thornton, collector of the town of Saugerties, who was named by the American Labor party as its candidate for district attorney, has declined the nomination. Mr. Thornton is not an attorney. His declination came yesterday following an announcement by the Labor party that its executive committee had named him as its choice.

This morning the Freeman was notified by the Labor party that Mr. Thornton had declined the nomination.

Mr. Thornton has been active in Democratic circles in Saugerties for several years and has been mentioned as a possible candidate of that party for the office of supervisor this fall.

Apparently the designation of Mr. Thornton as the Labor party choice for the office of district attorney was made without his approval or consent.

The Labor party also named John C. Shults of Saugerties, former Democratic supervisor from that town, and a candidate for various offices including sheriff for the office of county clerk. Efforts to locate Mr. Shults and get a statement as to his intentions were not successful.

ESCAPED PRISONERS RECAPTURED

These men, shown in front of a police chart at Kankakee, Ill., were captured by authorities in a tourist camp there, and Sheriff Gene La Fontaine said they were identified as two of seven prisoners who escaped from federal guards near Thornburg, Va., July 26. They identified themselves, he said, as Gerald Montague, 21, (left of Kankakee, serving three years for theft of a taxicab, and Walter Smith, 22, of Cincinnati, a convicted post office burglar.

Polish Minister's Daughter Is Slain

Camden, N. J., Aug. 8 (AP)—Wearing a corsage of red and white roses, a minister's 17-year-old daughter was found mysteriously slain today beside a muddy lane eight blocks from her home.

The Rev. Walter Dworecki of a Camden Polish Baptist Church identified the bruised, rain-soaked girl as that of his auburn-haired daughter, Wanda, who left home last night "to buy a pair of stockings."

Coroner Franklin Johnson said the cause of death was not immediately determined. Her throat was bruised as though she had been choked. Her face was discolored as if from a blow. There was a wound in her temple which might have been made by a bullet or knife.

She had been released from a hospital only recently after weeks of treatment for injuries received four months ago when she was abducted, beaten and tossed unconscious from an automobile in Auburn, N. J.

Beside her body, along a narrow lane opposite the Camden high school athletic field were fresh automobile tracks in the mud.

A diamond ring remained on her finger, indicating robbery had not been a motive.

The girl's sister, Mildred, told police: "I saw Wanda just before she left the house (last night). She didn't have a corsage on when she left."

The Rev. Dworecki sobbed "Oh, my Lord, and seemed on the verge of collapse as officers sought to learn whether his daughter ever was able to give any information to identify the men who abducted and beat her last April 3.

"At that time she related: 'I was on my way to the drug store for medicine. Someone called my name. I walked over to see who it was. I walked over to see who it was and what they wanted. The man sitting nearest the pavement grabbed my arm and dragged me into the car. That's all I can remember. Until I was pushed from the car.' Theorizing the men who beat her then might be the ones who killed the girl, Mrs. Mary El Kobus, Camden's director of public safety, took personal charge.

This Ferdinand No Pansy Sniffer: Here's His Story

New Orleans, Aug. 8 (AP)—William Lashley, Sr., named his 1,000-pound Jersey bull Ferdinand.

But Lashley's Ferdinand knew nothing of the storied Ferdinand's penchant for flowers, preferred cornmeal.

Yesterday the bull nosed out the supply, wedged himself half through a fence hole and devoured a 100-pound sack.

Thoroughly bloated, he then could go no further forward nor back. Lashley worked the rest of the day, but to no avail. Ferdinand lay down with his meal. Then Lashley remembered the invigorating effect a bee's sting had on the storied Ferdinand.

Lacking a bee, he got an electric battery, applied the terminals to Ferdinand's flank. Ferdinand leaped clear.

House Republicans Plan Program on Three Major Topics

Washington, Aug. 8 (AP)—House Republicans aimed today to have a definite program on at least three major topics—housing, agriculture and reciprocal trade agreements—to present at the 1940 session of Congress as alternatives to administration measures.

Minority Leader Martin (R., Mass.) probably will appoint special committees in the near future to study each of the subjects and to draft legislation. He declined to discuss the matter before leaving for home, except to say it was under consideration.

The housing question was among those selected for study, it was understood, because most members regard it as certain to be re-legislated by the administration next year. Some Senators expressed the opinion, however, that its companion bill—the lending measure, which the House killed—would not be re-enacted if business improves.

The reciprocal trade agreements subject was on the Republican list, it was said, because Martin included it in his 12-point "recovery program" announced last April. At that time, he called for creation of a special congressional committee to investigate the effect of the trade program on industry and agriculture.

Some Republicans were not optimistic about the chances of any party committee working out a solution to the farm problem. One member commented: "It's not much trouble to get a plan, but getting one that will work and on which the various farm groups will agree is something else again."

Complainant Fails to Appear in Dibble Action

The action brought by Mrs. Gertrude Whitfield of New York city against Adelbert Dibble, Albany avenue extension garage man, was dismissed Monday afternoon when the complainant failed to appear.

The case was to have been tried before Justice Humphrey Jones and a jury and trial had been set for 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. A jury had been summoned, but when the complainant failed to appear Justice Jones dismissed the charge.

Mrs. Whitfield had preferred a charge of reckless driving against Dibble following an accident in front of the latter's garage a week ago. Sunday night, when she crashed into his truck, which was being backed out.

Major Industries Except Coal Show Profit for Quarter

A compilation made by the Wall Street Journal, from figures submitted by the first 286 corporations to report earnings for the second quarter of this year, indicates that all major industries, with the exception of coal mining, showed a profit for the quarter. Industry and trade is seen to be in a position to score further earnings gain on any continuation of the upward trend in production and sales. The 286 corporations reporting had total earnings in the second quarter of $206,909,818, which compared with earnings of $114,362,037 in the second quarter of 1938, a gain of $92,547,781, or 80.7 per cent. As a rule, however, profits continue to run below the like period in 1937. Coal mining was the exception, and seven companies reported losses in the second quarter this year of $1,666,328. This is better than a year ago, when losses totaled $2,512,378 in the second quarter. A group of five textile companies showed the best percentage of gain over last year's profits, earnings $1,776, 653 in the 1938 quarter against $85,623 in the 1938 quarter.

Acting under a resolution sponsored by Senator Byrd (Dem., Va.) the treasury department is beginning a five-month survey of 30 federal corporations and agencies to find out the actual financial picture of the New Deal's excursions into the realm of private business. A great many people will be interested in knowing just what these U. S. agencies cost when measured by the scale used by the private business man.

With rising auto demand, steel operations this week are scheduled at 60.1 per cent of capacity, a rise of 0.8 point over last week and compared with 49.7 per cent a month ago.

Goodyear Tire & Rubber reports net of $3,610,595, or 36 cents a common share, for the first half of this year, compared with net of $1,663,823, or two cents a share, in the first half of 1938. In a quiet market, selling said to be largely professional, and not viewed as important, stocks sold off Monday. Volume was 520,000 shares. Dow-Jones industrials rose 1.35 point, closing at 140.76. Rails were off .40 point, to 28.80. Utilities dropped .29 point, to 26.45.

Although staples generally were steady Monday a sharp sell-off in hide futures and cashness in grains lowered the commodity index .020 point. Hide futures were off about one-fourth of a cent a pound. Holiday abroad restricted trading in the wheat markets. The grain was off 1/2 cent a bushel in Chicago. Sugar prices receded rather sharply and Cuban raws sold as low as 2.85 cents a pound on a duty-paid basis. Philippines and Puerto Ricans appeared to be steady at 2.90. General liquidation Monday in the Chicago market carried October eggs down 45 points to 17.30 cents a dozen, new low for the season and with the exception of 1932 and 1933 lowest in history. There was some recovery but final prices were off 30 points net. November butter also showed a loss of 15 points in early trading, closing off five points.

The National Fertilizer Association's commodity price list, with 1926-28 taken as 100, stood at 70.9 per cent for the week ended August 5, lowest since July, 1934. General Motors yesterday declared a dividend of 75 cents on common stock. Other payments, unchanged, were International Nickel, 50 cents; Collins & Aikman Corp., 25 cents; Archer-Daniels-Midland, 25 cents. Coca-Cola International Corp. pays $5.80 on common. Paid a similar amount July 1 last year.

Saves Drowning Man

Chris Ortleib, Jr., of Spruce street, while spending the week-end with several friends from Kingston at Point Pleasant, N. J., saved a man from drowning.

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—The stock market shifted into rallying territory at the start of today's session but early gains running to a point or so were cut down or cancelled in many cases near the final hour.

Dealers slackened perceptibly after noon, with transfers for the day at the rate of approximately 450,000 shares.

Traders had nothing much new to go on, brokers said, but the generally favorable business outlook impelled some to reinstate commitments despite the fact foreign affairs were still viewed as a speculative handicap.

European securities exchanges, opening after the holidays, were unable to show definite trends. Bonds did better. Commodities were mixed.

Stocks ahead the greater part of the time were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Westinghouse, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, du Pont, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, North American, Santa Fe, Loft and Kennecott.

In the curb timid support was accorded Electric Bond & Share, Lake Shore, Lockheed and American Cyanamid "B."

Chemists Lack Words To Describe Perfumes

The food and perfume industries are handicapped by the lack of words to describe precisely the odors and flavors of their products, according to Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, publication of the American Chemical society.

Years of patient labor and the cooperation of huge numbers of noses may be required to bring order to the nomenclature of odors and flavors, it is pointed out.

There are few fields affording so great an opportunity for the exercise of special talents, and the rewards for accomplishment include renown, in view of the extraordinary influence of these sensations on human emotions and actions.

The terms "sweet," "sour," "musty," "fresh," "salty," "acidic," "bitter" and a few others are the limit to which it has so far been possible to go toward defining odors and flavors, it is said. Chemists with a wide range of tastes and smells at their command for comparison have developed individual systems of nomenclature based on similarities, but even these are so far incapable of the requisite exactness.

An alcoholic odor, for example, may mean one similar to that of ethanol, but it may with equal logic be intended to suggest any of a dozen other alcohols whose characteristic aromas are quite different. No standard odor seems to characterize ketones, yet they are notably odorous. Ethers and esters similarly show wide variations, which no one has yet classified or explained in a usable system.

Probably the reason for this chaotic situation is the vital role of personal idiosyncrasy in human noses and palates. Of the five human senses, only taste and smell have not yet yielded to scientific classification, and physiologists say that in reality these two are actually a single sense.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, AUGUST 8, 1939.

MILITARY OBSERVERS

American army maneuvers, which started at Manassas, Va., on August 5 and will begin at Plattsburg, N. Y., August 13, are well attended by foreign observers. The War Department, according to custom, sent invitations to the various embassy attaches and twenty were promptly accepted.

All the major nations except Italy will have military or air attaches, or both, at one place or the other. Some of the observers will divide their time between the two.

It is the duty of an attaché to be the eyes and ears of his government and to report important changes in military or naval routine or equipment of the country in which he is stationed. This is an illustration of that international courtesy which persists in the face of innumerable international discourtesies and which the non-military citizen finds it hard to understand.

The attaché has free access to everything his governmental host is willing he should see. Certain military secrets are kept from him, supposedly, else there would be no need of international spies.

This international military game might be great fun to play if human lives and civilization itself were not at stake.

ANOTHER HOT SPOT

Not all the trouble in the Orient is occurring in China. There has been rioting in Bombay recently over a new dry law. It is the first prohibition law set up in any large community since the "noble experiment" in the United States.

The law is supported by Gandhi and his followers. Moslems and Parsees oppose it. The Moslems, though abstainers by religion, do not like the new prohibition because they fear it will mean loss of city revenue and a consequent increase in taxes. A 10 p. m. curfew was imposed after riots had resulted in the injury of 55 persons, but the uneasiness remains.

There are other dissatisfactions in India, and a general boiling up of unrest which, while not new, is of greater concern to the harassed Britain now because of perils threatening vital spots of the Empire in many parts of the world. These are times when men with power and authority need not be envied. They are all sitting on lids over seething caldrons of potential disaster, and the old safety valves don't work.

UNIVERSAL MUDDLING

Thomas W. Lamont, recently returned from abroad, refuses to make any prediction about a European war in the near future. He adds that he is by nature an optimist, which may put him on the "no war" side, as homecoming travelers line up to forecast what's going to happen.

The banker makes one puzzling remark which seems a little disheartening. "Presidents and premiers in Europe have no more knowledge of what is going on than the man in the street." If he means only that they are unable to fathom the mind of Herr Hitler, his statement is clear enough.

If, however, he means they don't know what they're doing or where they're going or why anything happens, he indicates a more serious state of affairs than usually described. And it may explain much. How can any of us face facts and correct them or adjust ourselves to them if we don't even know what they are?

FREAK LICENSE PLATES

The first time you saw a license plate saying "Shanghai" on a car, or "Bombay" or "Athens," you probably thought the car had been to that far spot and the plate was legitimate souvenir of travel. By now you probably know it is merely the 1939 fad. Police in many places are failing to take kindly to it. It's too confusing. The first ones issued were numbered like the local state license plates. They cost a quarter and sold fast, especially to the young of the type who like to plaster their jalopies with "Oh, you kid!" and other signs of uplifting nature. There was so much police objection that the later ones have been made without figures.

These fads have their amusing side when they first come out. But they are really not very good business. Anything which tends to distract the eye of driver or pedestrian on the road has its dangerous and objectionable aspect.

TOP FISHERMAN

There seems to be something uncanny about the way Franklin Roosevelt catches fish. That is, of course, if the public gets accurate and unprejudiced reports of his fishing trips. Fishing is something that goes to the head, also to the tongue, and both fishermen and their friends have been known, in private life, to exaggerate a little about such matters.

Anyway, it is soberly recorded that not only on the last presidential fishing trip, but on every such trip since he became President, this devoted fisherman has caught the biggest fish.

It certainly is hard to tell what to make of such luck. Do the President's friends and guests deliberately refrain from doing their best, or do over-zealous friends misinform the newsmen, or is there a sort of radio charm to the President's hook? And what, if anything, does this sort of thing portend?

SHIP FOR SALE

Like to buy a lightship? You might bring this one back from your trip to the New York World's Fair. She's a bright red, 340-ton lightship with an anchor that weighs 5,000 pounds and was cast in the year 1830. The ship itself was built 57 years ago. It's 115 feet long and 25 feet wide, iron hull, sleeps twenty.

The Cornfield Lightship cost $50,000 to build, and served its country's shipping well at Cornfield Point, Conn., where it warned vessels of shoals on the easterly reach of Long Island Sound. Now it's ready to give some boat-fan or fishing club a home during its declining years.

What, you don't know where you could moor it and it's too big to set out in the back yard? Well, maybe so. But buying it and having fun is a nice thought.

Vacations are not permanently demoralizing. A fellow can usually handle his job again fairly well after he's been back for a couple of weeks.

It seems odd that grown-up men should take their golf so much more seriously than boys used to take their "shinny."

It doesn't matter much as long as that general war in Europe continues to be merely verbal.

HOLDING BREATH AS HEART TEST

One of the tests to find condition of the heart in recruits for the air service is holding the breath. A healthy young man can usually hold his breath for forty-five seconds and many 60 or more seconds. If the examiner is not careful, the recruit, unknown to himself, may be allowing small amounts of air to come out by way of his nose although the mouth is kept tightly closed. By closing the nostrils with the fingers, no air can come out and the correct measurement is thus made.

Another test is to have the recruit breathe in and out in a natural manner and after his breath is out he is told to hold his breath and not breathe in. A normal healthy adult can keep from breathing in for as long as 25 to 30 seconds.

Now this is very simple and anybody can make this test on himself by the aid of a watch. The one drawback in this test is that it should be taken under "normal" circumstances, that is, it should not be following a large meal nor after any hard exercise. If a large meal is in the stomach there is not room for the lungs to open up completely at the bottom. Thus some athletes (wrestlers) eat nothing after 2 p. m. with their bout at 9 p. m. If hard exercise has been taken, there is a lack of deficiency of oxygen in the blood (the system has gone into debt for oxygen for minutes or hours) and so oxygen will be needed in a shorter time than if the blood contained its usual amount of oxygen. The individual just has to breathe sooner under these circumstances.

Of course, practice enables one to hold the breath for longer periods; some swimmers are able to hold their breath under water for minutes at a time. The thought then is that if you are young and healthy and try these simple tests when you are rested and have not recently eaten, you should be able to hold your breath 40 to 45 seconds after a "deep" breath inwards, and 20 to 25 seconds after an ordinary breath outwards.

When one has been without food for many hours, an acid condition arises which lessens the oxygen in the blood and breathing must be done more often. Also when infection is present (teeth, tonsils), the breath cannot be held so long.

Why Worry About Your Heart?

Is it skipping beats? Is it irregular? Is it enlarged? Do you get out of breath easily? Send for Dr. Barton's helpful booklet entitled "Why Worry About Your Heart?" (No. 102) which explains the heart in an easily understandable manner. Send your request to The Bell Library, 247 West 43rd street, New York, N. Y., enclosing ten cents to cover cost of service and handling and mention the name of the Kingston Daily Freeman.

Republican Congressional Minority's Record in Last Session Seldom Equalled in U. S. Legislative History

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug. 8.—Solely under the able management of Chairman John Hamilton and his clever publicity aide, Frank Waltman, did a job of support which recalls the way Chairman John J. Raskob and his publicity expert, Charles Michelson, functioned for the Democratic party against the Hoover administration. A well organized and well-financed national headquarters can provide research data for members of Congress, can help them draft speeches on technical subjects, can see to it that they introduce the proper amendments at the right time to make a political record or to break down the objective of the way they party.

Looking at the other side of the picture during the last session, it cannot be denied that factionalism disturbed the harmony and morale of the Democratic party. Jealousies over leadership problems, differences of opinion on the merits of issues affecting the south adversely and the north beneficially, or vice versa, ill-feeling resulting from the so-called "purge" strategy in the 1938 congressional campaign for senators and members of their state delegations often work closely together—and a number of conflicts over patronage matters served to break the big Democratic majority into pieces. To this should be added a certain arbitrariness of view exhibited by the administration leaders in dealing with the conservatives.

It is still a mystery also why so many Democrats were permitted to absent themselves from roll calls without being called to book. But it is likewise true that the effects of the tactics of the earlier days of the administration, when orders were taken to Capitol Hill by tactless aides of the administration, were hard to overcome and could not be replaced by a different strategy without the minute and painstaking help of the President and his cabinet. A majority party in Congress has to be nursed along by the executive and his leaders just as a minority. The feeling sometimes that the majority is so big that it can ride easily over its opposition is like the overconfidence which winning athletic teams display only to be caught unawares by an alert, hard-playing opposition. That's the story of the last Congress and explains many of the contradictions and paradoxes in the voting records, as well as the series of defeats administered to the party in power. # Meet Mr. Lochinvar

By Marie Blizard

YESTERDAY: Locke invited Cecily to a picnic supper on the beach last Sunday. Still puzzled about him, she excitedly accepted.

Chapter 16

Cecily didn't want to think of the problem of Philip. She wanted to think of Locke.

She was going to see him on Sunday.

The room felt hot, stuffy to her. She didn't want to make the effort necessary to talk to them. She didn't want to play bridge.

She wanted to be alone.

She had another problem. She had accepted Locke's invitation to a hike on Sunday. But now that she had accepted it, she hadn't the least idea of how she was going to manage.

She couldn't very well say, "By the way, I have a date on Sunday with a nice young man. I'll be gone most of the afternoon and evening."

Oh, no, you can't do that when you're supposed to be engaged to another man who is a house-guest. You could, of course, tell a lie. Say that you had to do something for Laura. But you couldn't do it if you were Cecily Stuart. You might be able to tell one very white little lie about being engaged to someone you didn't know. But that didn't mean that you were a habitual liar.

Nevertheless, you meant to keep that Sunday date.

If only you could think of a way—

"Cecily, have you heard about the dinner-party?" Helene Fernandez broke in on Cecily's thoughts.

"No, what dinner-party?"

"We're all invited to Mrs. Brewster's who is giving it a week from Thursday. Manuel and I were planning to return to New York before then but Olivia insists that we stay."

"But I thought Mrs. Brewster never gives parties!"

Olivia said, "Only for state occasions. Cecily, this will be one and I think Helene ought to stay to see it. Not even in Newport is a summer dinner arranged with such grandeur. There will be at least seven courses and the gold plate service."

"What is the occasion?"

"Sir Hubert and Lady Rathbone are to be her house guests and she is dining them on that occasion. We will be six from Dorecia, Helene and Manuel, Philip and yourself, Armando—Armando was Olivia's accompanist—and myself."

Helene sighed. "Dress, I suppose."

"Yes, indeed. As formally as your wardrobe permits."

"Will Philip still be here?" Cecily inquired sweetly. And pointedly.

"Of course, he will," Olivia said at once.

Philip, looking frightfully pleased, rose at once and took one of Olivia's hands in his. "Dear lady, you know that I want to stay but I feel that I've overstayed now. You've been so kind, I find it hard to resist your invitation."

"Don't talk nonsense, Philip. We want you to stay with us as long as you can. You're an ideal guest. I'd miss you if you were to leave."

Cecily smiled weakly. Didn't the man have any decency? Didn't he have any work to do?

Going Away

SHE enjoyed having very much enjoyed having him. He was saying good-bye to her hat and saying good-bye to her. "Then I shall surely return," Philip was saying.

"Are you going away again?" Cecily's question was hopefully put. And not at all in the manner to be expected of a lovely girl whose fiancé was about to leave her.

"Yes," Olivia answered for him, "he's got to go to New York. Poor darling, and it's so dreadfully hot here. Gloria writes that she is simply languishing at Southampton."

"When are you going?" Cecily asked, trying to hide her eagerness.

"I'm afraid I'll have to leave on the morning train. My love, I've got to see my publishers Saturday. There's some question come up about my new book."

"Saturday? I thought publishing houses were closed on Saturday?"

"My little gossip! Publishers do not have office hours when they have business to talk over with authors."

"Not important authors," Helene contributed.

Cecily had her doubts about Philip's importance but she was content to let it go. Philip was going away. It was enough for her that she was to be free over the week-end. There was no longer any need for her to worry about managing to get away on Sunday.

Saturday she scanned the headlines anxiously. It was a cloudless day and at night the stars came out. "Please don't let it rain tomorrow," she prayed that night.

"Cecily, we're driving to Kennebunkport for some golf today."

Manuel said to her the next morning. "We're dining with the Gerhards at their place. Want to come along?"

"No, thank you," she said quickly. "I've some... some things to do today. Is Aunt Olivia going with you?"

"Of course, I am," Olivia broke in. "I've got to keep up my exercise. I'm not going to be one of those heavy-waisted contraltos."

"You're slim as a girl," Cecily said affectionately.

She wanted to pay everyone compliments. She wanted everyone to feel as completely gay as she was. She wanted to sing and dance. She wanted to work off the gaiety of her spirits that had been rising since first she opened her eyes that morning and saw that the sun was high in the heavens.

She had been up and out of doors before eight. She had walked to the beach and said to the waves, "This is the day I'm going to see him."

She had returned to the house and eaten a great breakfast before the others were up. Now that it was but a little after nine, she felt she could not endure the next five hours.

"Meet me at three at the fork of the road," Locke had said.

What do you do for five long hours on Sunday?

You pick fresh flowers to fill the bowls in all the rooms. You try to read Saturday's newspapers. You pick up your knitting and discover that you can't count stitches. You dawdle over your lunch and find it has taken only a half-hour. You try to listen to the radio but your mood is not for Sunday afternoon programs. You empty the contents of your bureau drawers and put them back in order.

The One Person

THEN suddenly you discover it is two o'clock and you've only got an hour in which to put on your tweed skirt, your bright blue sweater. You tie a kerchief over your tawny hair and see, for the first time, that your face seems pretty to you. Your eyes sparkle and your cheeks are pink. Perhaps that is because you've been bending over your lunch and find it has taken only a half-hour. You try to listen to the radio but your mood is not for Sunday afternoon programs. You empty the contents of your bureau drawers and put them back in order.

You know that isn't true. You know it is because you are happy, you anticipate the thing you have been waiting for.

And what are you waiting for? You're waiting to see the one person who makes you complete. You're waiting to see the man and between you there is the age-old and to-be-forever-new hope of quickened liking that makes every other thing in the world seem to stand still.

It was Cecily's first experience. The clock in the big hall was striking the half-hour after two when Cecily, with a twin cardigan thrown over her blue sweater, the sleeves knotted, came down the flight of stairs.

There was a stout stick in the umbrella rack. She took it out and set off in purposeful strides.

The wind in the trees, the murmur of the stout grass by the roadside, the crunch of pebbles beneath her boots fell on her ears as a pleasing newness. There was a new scent—the perfume of wild roses—that added to the mingled pine and salt-water-filled air. She wrinkled her nose with delicious enjoyment.

Main Street slept drowsily in the Sunday afternoon calm. Shuttered windows and closed doors faced her benignly. The clatter of horses' hoofs disturbed the calm and faded away. She met the inevitable two fifteen-year-old girls, arms about each other, strolling aimlessly. She waved her hand to old Mrs. Jamison, greedily watching what few passers-by enlivened her Sunday afternoon.

Then she was at the end of Main Street and striking off toward the road that led to the fork.

Locke was waiting for her. He sat by the roadside, lazily munching on a blade of grass. He looked as though he might have remained there forever, rapt in his contemplation of the sky.

Cecily came up behind him. "Boo! You pretty wild creature! Did you remember to bring the steak?"

He got to his feet at once. "Stout fellow!" he said. "Right on a time! I knew you were a girl in a million. Even if your interest seems to be in food rather than in me."

There was a knapsack on the grass, which he picked up and slung over his leather-jacketed shoulder.

"The steak's in here," he said. "And the potatoes?" she persisted.

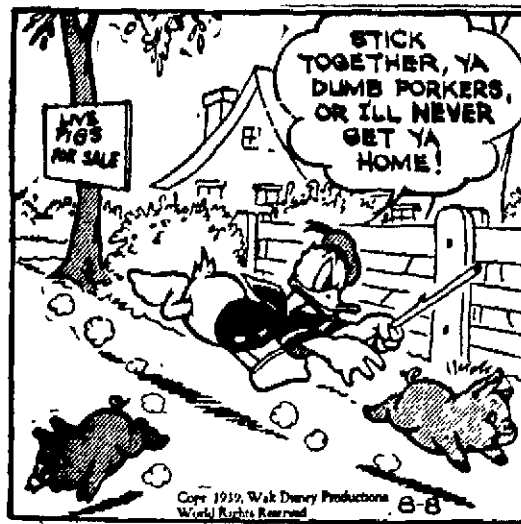

"Woman, don't you ever think of anything but food? The potatoes are at the beach. I sent them out by special messenger."

"You're very efficient," she said, and matched her stride to his.

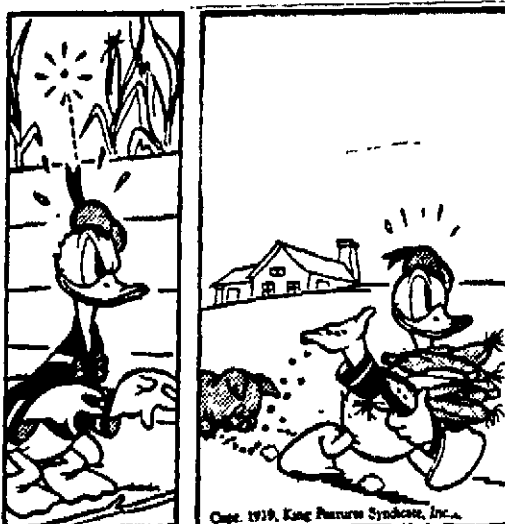

The road was a brown and gray tawed. The fields were green and yellow silk patterned with the pink of wild roses, with the purple of thistles that grew by the side of the road. It was a changeable silk that moved with dappled sunlight in the soft summer breeze.

Continued tomorrow.

Some people get the reputation of being generous because they are always promoting some idea to get the other fellow to spend him money.

Wife—Did you notice the wonderful coat on the woman who was sitting in front of us in church this morning?

Husband—No, I'm afraid I was dozing.

Wife—It does a lot of good to take you to church doesn't it?

Two men got a job to clean some very high windows.

Tom—Mike, get a plank and put it through the window. I'll sit on the plank inside, and you sit outside.

All went well until Mike cried out:

Mike—I've let my chamois skin fall.

Tom—All right. Stop where you are. I'll get it.

Away Tom went down the stairs. On reaching the street he exclaimed:

Tom—Be jabbers, Mike, you're here first! Which way did you come?

Many people who go away on vacations are as glad to get home as they were to go.

A lot of fellows polish up their guns, make a lot of good ammunition, load it up painstakingly, take careful aim—then get too tired to pull the trigger.

Wife—Jack, did you hear anything?

Jack—Yes, dear, that must be burglars.

Wife—Jack, do be careful. What are you going to do?

Jack—Lock the door of the bedroom.

Still looks do count even when you buy a fish:

Customer—I don't like the looks of that haddock.

Fish Dealer—Lady, if its looks are after, why don't you buy a goldfish?

Mandy—Ah, wants a quart of sanctified milk.

Grocer—What you all means is facinated milk.

Mandy—Look, heah, small one, when Ah needs inflammation Ah'll specify.

Junior—I know why mosquitoes bite you more than they do other people.

Father—Why, son?

Junior—Because you have high blood pressure and they don't have to suck so hard.

Probably it will come as a surprise to most readers to learn that in only 25 states have women the right to sit on juries.

Comedy Scheduled For Elwyn Group

The sparkling comedy, "Her Master's Voice," written by Clare Kummer, which starred Roland Young in the Broadway production several seasons ago, is this week's presentation at the Woodstock Playhouse.

"Her Master's Voice" is a highly amusing comedy which concerns Ned and Queena Farrar, who really love each other; but their life is made somewhat complicated by rich Aunt Min and Mrs. Martin. The latter is a frail and misunderstood woman until she meets Mr. Twilling, the town's richest man.

Don McHenry plays the male lead and he is ably supported by Miss Edith Gresham (who has not been seen since the Widow Quinn of "Playboy of the Western World" and Miss Betty Mallock. Woodstock audiences will again see Miss Velma Royton, who is cast in the amusing role of Aunt Min. Miss Royton has not appeared the last few weeks since she has been busy directing the apprentice group in rehearsal of her own play, "The Little People," which is to be soon presented.

Miss Dorothy Berry and Lester Bacharach also will appear in "Her Master's Voice."

Two Million Seals At TB Office

The Christmas Seals, 2,000,000 in number, with posters, school programs and parcel stuffers have now arrived at the office of the Ulster County Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health.

Although the seals will not be mailed out before November much preliminary work is already necessary going on in the committee office.

The 1939 Christmas Seal this year is of a beautiful blue. A haloed angel with outstretched arm and a crusader's cross of brilliant red make-up the design. The seal was, as usual, selected by the Seal Sale Advisory Committee of the National Conference of Tuberculosis Secretaries. After consideration of a large number of designs submitted by artists all over the country, the design of Rockwell Kent, noted artist, was chosen. Mr. Kent was born in Tarrytown, N. Y., and is now a resident of Ausable Forks in this state. His paintings hang in all of the principal galleries of the country. Mr. Kent is also a distinguished author.

In sheets of 100, the seals are most attractive with suitable greetings, and educational statements in the center block of four stamps.

The work of folding the seals for mailing will begin very shortly and the committee will be most grateful to any society or organization who will volunteer to help in this project.

Any person or group interested in this charitable work may call for further information at the tuberculosis office, 74 John street, this city, or telephone 1164.

Westchester Votes 10-Cent Toll on County Parkway

White Plains, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP)—A ten-cent toll on the Hutchinson River Parkway, effective August 18, has been voted by the Westchester County Board of Supervisors.

A similar toll recently was put into effect on the Merritt Parkway in Connecticut.

The Westchester supervisors authorized the toll charge by a 5-to-4 vote yesterday, and provided $5,000 for erection of toll booths.

Replying to an opponent who said State Attorney General John J. Bennett and the Automobile Club of New York had threatened to take action if a toll is imposed, County Supervisor Benjamin Barnes, Yonkers Democrat, said:

"We know how long it takes to get a decision from Albany. Let's start the collection at once, and by the time we get the decision we'll be a half-million dollars ahead."

Police of Eight States Searching for Westbrook

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—Police of eight states searched today for Alfred Westbrook, 55, teller at the George Washington bridge, after officials of the Port of New York Authority reported a shortage of at least $13,500 in the bridge's week-end receipts.

A warrant charging Westbrook with grand larceny was issued yesterday. An eight-state alarm was sent out.

Westbrook, a 13-year employee, left for work as usual yesterday, his wife, Daisy, said.

My husband would rather die than take any money that did not belong to him," she wept. "And I should know. We have been married for 35 years."

Mrs. Westbrook said her husband had been unhappy over his transfer from a Staten Island post, regarding the move as a demotion. They have a son, Howard, 20, and two married children.

Girl Born With Heart Outside Body Doing Well

Manila, Aug. 8 (AP)—A seven-pound baby girl, born with her heart completely outside her body but apparently normal otherwise, alternately took nourishment and peacefully slept today while puzzled doctors worried what to do.

A thin stemless cocktail glass protected the tiny exposed heart which rested in the infant's chest over a small opening. Through this opening the aorta, a large artery, connects the heart with the thoracic cavity, where the heart normally is found. The glass helps maintain body heat for the heart and guards against infection.

Physicians disagreed whether the child would live and debated feasibility of an operation to place the heart in its normal position inside the chest. They said there was only one other such case in recorded medical history.

The child was born yesterday to a 42-year-old mother in a little maternity hospital in the heart of the Tondo slum district. She was baptized by a priest and named Maria Corazon (Mary Heart).

$30,000 Price Is Put Upon Louis Buchalter

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—Somewhere in hiding today is a middle-aged man with a $30,000 price on his head.

He is Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, 42, a stocky, swarthy, big-nosed gangster—newest wearer of the ever-shifting title, "Public Enemy No. 1."

J. Edgar Hoover, G-man chief whose men have hunted Lepke for two years, will pay $5,000 for him.

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey—thanks to action yesterday by the city board of estimate—has raised New York's ante to $25,000.

Both Hoover and Dewey have promised to keep secret the name of the person who "puts the finger" on Lepke, and the reward will be paid whether the fugitive racketeer, held responsible by Dewey for the slaying of five former associates since he jumped $10,000 bail, is captured dead or alive.

In the hope of obtaining a lead to Lepke's whereabouts, Dewey ordered an eight-state alarm for Isidore Zennreich, 41, a partner of Lepke, and Jacob (Gurrah) Shapiro in the days when they dominated the baking and garment industry rackets here.
